Santiam Canyon Young Professionals group brings energy and vision

They've got a hashtag and they're not afraid to use it

By Nicole Miller

It's 8 a.m. on a warm summer day in the scenic Santiam Canyon. Cars are pulling in to the parking lot of Trexler Farm Café in Stayton, Oregon. Twenty- and thirty-somethings are hopping out and bustling into the quaint farm store café's "boat room," where they gather for the newly formed North Santiam (NS) Young Pros meet-up, coordinated by GROW EDC, on the third Thursday of each month at 8 a.m.

Young men and women greet each other with excitement in their voices and smiles upon their faces. While some have attended the NS Young Pros meet-ups before, there are always new faces. With a variety of professionals ranging from banking managers to race car drivers, and non-profit (cont'd on page 4)

"YP Selfie": NS Young Pros selfie with Grady Hardage, Janai Hill, Emily Gooch, Eli Justman, Chad Seegmiller, guest speaker Paula Newman, Elaina Turpin, Nicole Miller, Jennifer Sandberg, Julie Hilty and Jason Burns.

Tim Kirsch, Current Mayor of Mill City

TO THE CITIZENS OF MILL CITY: My name is Tim Kirsch and I am the Mayor Mill City. I am again running for Mayor of our beautiful city.

While serving as Mayor I have been instrumental in several much needed upgrades to our city's livability, some of which are; the addition of a one million gallon water reservoir, the rehab of the south reservoir, rebuilding of all three sewer pump stations, two drinking water wells, the transference of our surface water rights to those wells that allowed our city to keep its senior water rights while reducing the chemical treatment of our water, replacement of thousands of feet of antiquated or inadequate water transmission lines, restrooms and play equipment in Kimmel Park, the building of a new City Hall, a sidewalk on Fairview street from 1st street to Kimmel park, improvements in other parks,,improvements at our sewer plant, and equipment upgrades.

In the last 10 years the City's net worth has increased approximately two million dollars. We have consistently received a "strong" rating by our financial auditors. We haven't raised water or sewer rates since 2008-2009, and have never increased property taxes while I have been in office.

These are all things that I have advocated for, and the list goes on.

When re-elected I will serve in a manner that continues to upgrade our infrastructure, and enhance the livability of our community. I am asking that you look at our community's forward movement and vote Tim Kirsch for Mayor.

Thank you for your past and future support, Tim Kirsch, Mayor of Mill City.

Thorin Thacker, Mayoral Candidate

My name is Thorin Thacker, and I'm running for Mayor of Mill City.

I believe our first responsibility in taking an elected position is to give representation to the ones we're suppose to be representing. That includes fortifying Council with an active role, and making decisions as a collective. It's not our place to vote FOR you, it's our duty to vote for YOU!

I believe in transparency of government and communication. I have a reputation of asking the hard questions during council meetings, and in my professional career, a reputation of being efficient and very effective. I believe in customer service and treating our citizens with dignity and respect. Asking for solutions from the ones with the issue, and working to find a resolve that is amicable to everyone.

I believe in community service, being involved and interacting with our citizens and community.

I consider myself fiscally conservative, but also understand the importance of spending the money we've budgeted. That's how we take care of our town, do repairs, preventative maintenance, and to make our town more pleasant and livable. It's so very important we spend wisely and get the most out of the money budgeted as possible.

My goals as Mayor are heavily influenced with cleaning up Mill City with strong focus on H.W. 22. I also plan on getting to the bottom of the issue with ODOT's H.W. 22 project. Finally putting to rest the rumors and concerns, finding the facts and/or timeline, and give the needed reassurance to our businesses so that they may move forward with much needed repairs without fear of ODOT taking their building or access.

I'm very motivated to work with and help our business and the economic development of Mill City, getting the most out of a tourist initiative to bring more money into our town, and make us more of a destination.

I plan to work with Council, spending special attention to code enforcement, specifically the one's concerning our image. Working on the curb appeal of our town and the result it will have on our pride of ownership.

In short, my goals as your Mayor will reflect honest representation, fortifying Council, and cleaning up our town to reflect the place it deserves to be.

“These are our heirs apparent, the thinkers and doers who are making an investment of their time, energy, money.”

(cont'd from page 1) directors to local entrepreneurs, they all share a common bond: They are under 40, doing business in the Santiam Canyon. “Hashtag-NS Young Pros!” they shout. The group loves using their hashtag for organic marketing and social media, especially NS Young Pros member Nicole Miller, a public relations consultant who thrives on all things marketing.

“I always look forward to our ‘hashtag-NS Young Pros’ group,” says U.S. Bank Small Business Relationship Manager Chad Seegmiller, smiling. “I not only get to network with other young professionals in the area, but there is always something really valuable for me to learn. My favorite topic so far was time management. I can directly apply that to my life and job. Who knew that time management is so powerful?”

These are our up-and-coming business and community leaders (some are already). They haven’t had a forum to speak together with one voice or come together to network with and learn from each other. This new group will provide that opportunity.

“Our hope is that making connections among folks in this age group will inspire larger economic development projects region-wide, further anchor the investment these young people have made in our communities and provide an active forum for them to do business their way,” says GROW EDC executive director Allison McKenzie.

What: North Santiam Young Pros
 Who: People 40 & under who live and/or work in the Santiam Canyon, from Aumsville/Scio up through Marion Forks
 When: Third Thursdays of the month, 8-9:45a.m.
 Where: Trexler Farm, 20146 Ferry Road SE, Stayton, OR 97383

“My favorite part is that these young pros have designed these meet-ups themselves. This is an organic process coming directly from the group, and is probably more meaningful as a result,” says McKenzie. “That’s why we have speakers, for example, and other similar groups don’t. That’s why we meet in the morning during a work-week--many people with young families want this to be business-focused so they can keep their family or evening social time sacred.”

“These are our heirs apparent, the thinkers and doers who are making an investment of their time, energy and even money in our communities. They have a unique way of doing business and getting things done, and we want to support them in that effort,” says McKenzie.

The Young Pros have chosen a meeting format that includes networking time, a featured young pro spotlight and a speaker on a topic of their choice. Topics so far have included negotiating various personality types, conflict resolution and time management. Many speakers tend to be baby boomers. “We’ve gone this route because we want to help the young pros build more solid relationships with the people who came before them. Baby boomers and millennials have a lot in common, particularly their interest in volunteerism, community building and bringing passion to causes they believe in. We want to make sure they have an opportunity to interact together in a meaningful way while the baby boomers are still in the work force.”

The October 16 speaker topic is about the latest and greatest tips on social media for business with Nicole Miller of Word’s Out PR in Stayton. While Miller is not a boomer, she is a millennial who can speak on a topic of great interest to these young pros.

“Through the Young Professionals group, I have learned skills that are so valuable. I have met new people and have connections that I wouldn’t have had without this awesome group,” says Elaina Turpin, assistant director of the Stayton/Sublimity Chamber of Commerce. “The best part is, this group doesn’t feel like just another meeting, it’s one I look forward to attending. I love being surrounded with forward-thinking, future-oriented, community-minded people. We’re always looking for new people to join our group.”

RC club works hard to clean up Davis Air Field

By Bruce Brunstad

A newly formed local RC Club, the "Cascade Cloud Clippers" has gotten permission to fly their RC (Radio Controlled) model aircraft at Davis Field in Gates. During times of clear weather and low wind (typically in the mornings and evenings,) the brightly colored model aircraft can often be seen looping and diving over the flying field - their pilots always watchful for full sized aircraft on approach for landing.

On Saturday, October 4th, a group of RC aircraft enthusiasts took part in clearing blackberry bushes that had completely engulfed a parked full size aircraft. The parked aircraft is a twin engine Piper Aztec, located outside the hangar at Davis Field. The aircraft is not currently in flying condition and has been parked for many years.

This blackberry-clearing project was meant as a show of appreciation

Before and after the blackberry clearing from the RC club for being allowed to fly their aircraft at Davis Field. It is possible that other maintenance activities could be scheduled in the future.

Local hunter takes down old tom cougar

Rich Cole said the woods were "completely silent" as the 125 pound animal advanced toward them

On opening day of deer season this past Saturday, Pastor Rich Cole of the Mill City Baptist Church was out in the woods first thing in the morning hunting with his son, Doug.

They were quietly combing the hills southwest of Frank Lumber company. The entire morning they had not seen even a trace of a deer, and they found out that was maybe for a good reason.

After a morning of no luck they opted to take a break. As they sat in silence, munching on their snack of peanut butter and jelly sandwiches, the two kept careful watch for any activity, but there was none. The woods were absolutely silent.

After about half an hour they heard a twig snap down wind from them.

"Doug saw it first - it was a big cat, a cougar, about 40 yards away, making it's way through the tall timber towards us," said Rich Cole.

Both Rich and Doug were wearing No Scent, an effective product to mask the scent of a human; however, they think that perhaps it was the peanut butter gave away their resting place.

"It was the eeriest thing I'd ever seen. We could see the cat advancing in our direction quickly. He was maneuvering through a landmine of dried twigs and leaves, yet the woods remained completely silent," said Rich Cole.

Doug didn't have a cougar tag, but Rich did.

a cougar out in the woods before. This would be his first attempt. The cat continued towards them from down wind, not looking in their direction, and not seeming to be aware of the two hunters.

Rich Cole set his sight, he could see the hind end of the animal clearly. He would hit the hind quarter first, he planned, then have an extra shot for the top.

As he set the safety on his rifle to off the distinct "click" disrupted the silence. The cat and Rich Cole locked eyes. He took his shot, and it landed as planned. Within that second, the hunt was over.

"I tell you, from what was in his stomach there was nothing, he was hungry. He was an old tom cat, missing some teeth, and weighed in at 125 pounds," said Rich Cole.

The night watchman at Frank Lumber Company mentioned to Cole that he had been noticing

As the cat move stealthily through the forest, Rich decided to take a shot. In all his years of hunting he had never seen there had been no deer coming around to the edges of the property like usual for a couple weeks prior. Since Saturday's hunt however the deer are back, 3-5 of them every night now, and Tuesday night there were 7.
